which has an interview with the star of the new Downton Abbey movie, who will be playing Isobel Crawley. Elizabeth McGovern (left), a Bond girl in Never Say Never Again and a Downton Abbey regular, is to play Isobel Crawley in a film adaption of the fifth series of the ITV period drama. Cousin Isobel, the sisters' straitlaced mother, is described as the "Queen's bosom companion" in the long-running ITV show which also features Tom Branson, the brother-in-law of Robert Crawley (Hugh Bonneville), the family patriarch. In the adaptation Isobel and other cast members will travel to India to help Robert's elderly father-in-law during a difficult operation. But since Isobel has been brought up in a castle, she is unused to the poverty and disease around them. McGovern, 67, who appeared in more than 200 films since her debut in 1971's Alfie, b7e8fdf5c8
