Just finished my first read through of the book. Richard's book have always been more about building a connection with people and less about lines and routines. this book tells you how to have better interactions with people and how to build better social circles. it talks about the flaws people have in conversations and how to correct them so the person will remember you a lot more than if you were to just have surface level communication. as in his previous books, it touches upon 3 things you need to know to get to know the person, they are, character traits, emotions and motivations for why people do what they do, if you can connect on this, then you will have a powerful interaction. it then goes on to explain how to find the ideal partner and when you find them, goes into details about how to keep your relationship alive....
